Street Boutique:

Down South in Imperial Beach

To kick off our new year, our Mobile Operations of Dignity (MOD) Squad staff traveled to Imperial Beach to deliver brand new undergarment sets and a month's supply of menstrual hygiene and incontinence products to unsheltered San Diegans. All items were individually selected by each guest through our Street Boutique website, with the support of our partners at the Imperial Beach Neighborhood Center.

DID YOU KNOW?

$60 (or $5/month for sustaining members) can provide 15 individuals with brand new undergarments.

HOMELESSNESS FACT

According to research on HUD's data in 2019, Black San Diegans are five times more likely to experience homelessness than most racial and ethnic groups as they have continued to face long-standing discrimination that hinders equitable access to vital resources and perpetuates disparities in poverty and criminal justice.

Executive Director's Corner

As a panelist for The Financial Rollercoaster session during University of San Diego's Nonprofit Institute's Nonprofit Governance Symposium, Mitchell Woodson spoke on the importance of recognizing the needs of both the people you serve and the people who serve during times of crises in order to effectively pivot and develop the best human-centered solutions.

She cited how our programs focused on assessing the changes in the community and our agency at the start of the pandemic to identify resource gaps and capacity limitations, which helped us continue to thrive and develop new initiatives and projects to best support homeless San Diegans.
